REPUTATION

You might just as well kill a dog as give him a bad name. We are proud of our reputation and we want to say right here if anybody knocks us they boost us, for if you sift the matter you'll find it a personal thing, as all successful people make enemies through being successful, and if we had no enemies we would need no friends. So friends, meet your friends and talk it over, you'll find this true. There's no Wheat Bran Filler in DR. HUDSON'S LIQUID CONDITIONER. It's all medicine you buy when you purchase a bottle of DR. HUDSON'S LIQUID CONDITIONER, and one bottle will do your horse more good than any condition powder you ever fed for that much money. The Merchants profit on Dr. Hudson's Liquid Conditioner is not big, and right here is where you get some benefit. Your horse will prove this to you if you give him a chance to do so. Feed it to the worst looking horse you own, good results will follow. Its the Best Horse Medicine.

The Willy Giraffe.

Perhaps the most difficult of all wild animals to capture is the giraffe. In addition to being very rare, giraffes are exceedingly timid and are very swift footed. There is no special way to capture a giraffe, as almost every way has been tried, and all have been almost equally unsuccessful. The method which has occasionally resulted in a capture is by using a long cord at each end of which is a round weight. This cord is thrown by the hunter in such a manner as to wind around the animal's legs, either bringing it to the ground or rendering it incapable of escaping before it is made a prisoner. Most of the giraffes in captivity have been caught by chance when young.—Chicago Journal.

No "Cries" in Berlin.

There are no Berlin "cries." News papers are sold almost in silence by spectacled men who look like professors. Handbills—most of them inviting to cafes of the cheaper kind—are offered at street corners by old gentlemen who might easily pose for deacons of the church. No piano organs play in the central streets; no hucksters hawk their wares. The only sound in the city is the clatter of the horses' hoofs on the clean asphalt and, of course, the gridding of electric trolleys on their endless journey round the city. But most everywhere, too, one hears the noise of hammer and chisel where workmen are raising new palaces.—Progress Magazine.

POPULATION OF COUNTY TOWNS

Some County Towns Show Increases of Several Hundred. A few have Dropped in Last Decade. Biglerville's First Census.

The population of a number of Adams County towns has been announced, some of them showing increases over the 1900 figures while some have dropped.

	1910	1900
Arendtsville	383	393
Bendersville	355	342
Abbotstown	332	345
Biglerville	386
East Berlin	672	695
Fairfield	273	268
Littleton	1,347	1,118
McSherrystown	1,724	1,490
New Oxford	828	863
York Springs	299	352

Biglerville was not a borough in 1900 and so no figures are given for the town's population at that time.

Arendtsville shows a decrease of ten; Abbotstown of 13; Fairfield of 22; and York Springs of 53.

A number of the larger county towns show substantial increases over the last census. Littleton gained 229; and McSherrystown 234. New Oxford has a gain of 175; Bendersville of 13; and East Berlin of 4. Several months ago we published figures showing that the total for the county was about 135 below the census of 1900. This was due largely to the people from the country districts moving to other counties as the total of all the towns shows an increase of between 1600 and 1700.

FARMERS STRONG FOR EDUCATION

"The farmers' institutes which have been in progress throughout the state since last fall, will close in the second week of March and the attendance this year has exceeded all previous records," said A. L. Martin, Deputy Secretary of Agriculture. "The figures will show that the banner year of 1909-10 has been beaten by thousands and there is a general cry for more institutes.

"One of the big features of this season has been the movable school. This has been conducted as a sort of specialized institute and although we gave over 100 days many have been disappointed. We started the schools as a feature of educational work in 1907 and they proved so popular that we had to enlarge them last season. I hope to see them still further enlarged.

"The time has gone by for the old time general talk. The farmers are becoming used to our educational methods and are demanding more socialization. The men who devote themselves to downright practical talks on farming, crops, chicken raising, dairying and other lines are the ones who are winning close attention and there is a continually increasing demand for more of them."

CHARGES BROUGHT AGAINST KAPPES

Homer Amos, Held for Assault and Battery on Kappes' Information, Prefers Similar Charges against the Latter.

Squire Meals this morning heard the case against Homer Amos charging him with assault and battery following a fight between the defendant and Fred Kappes in front of Hotel Gettysburg on the evening of January 14.

The charge of mayhem which was brought on allegations of the defendant having bitten Kappes was withdrawn and after hearing all the evidence Squire Meals held Amos for April term of court, bail in the sum of $300 being furnished.

District Attorney Neely conducted the case for the Commonwealth and John D. Keith represented Amos.

Following this hearing Amos laid information charging Kappes with assault and battery and he was waived a hearing. His case also will come up for April term of court. It is also an outgrowth of the same quarrel.

STEWART WAS BEATEN

Fred Stewart, of Detroit, Michigan, ex-champion pool player of the United States, had a stop put to his sweeping victories at McSherrystown on Friday night.

The champion was up against McSherrystown's twin-wizards, "Spiky" Klunk and "Midget" Brady, and both youngsters were victorious.

The contests were held in the game-room of the Eagle Aerie, that place, which was crowded with enthusiasts. Stewart played a 100-ball game with each of his challengers, and "Spiky" came out victorious with 8 points to his credit, while the "Midget" came through with a single point.

The large crowd gave encouragement to the boys, and applauded all the many fine plays. Stewart scored the high-run with 31, while Brady was a close second with 30. Klunk's highest was 17.

MRS. TAFT SENDS SOUVENIR

Miss Sarah L. Sneeringer, of McSherrystown, has received from Mrs. Taft, wife of the President of the United States, a beautiful hand-embroidered handkerchief. The handkerchief can be seen at the St. Joseph's table, and during the progress of the fair will be disposed of to the best advantage. It will doubtless be observed with great interest. The management of the fair is to be congratulated on having received a contribution from the "First Lady of the Land."

GETTYSBURG 39 DICKINSON 38

Fast and Exciting Game of Basketball Played Saturday Evening in Presence of Large Crowd of Enthusiasts. Narrow Escape.

Gettysburg followers of basketball had their full share of excitement Saturday evening when they witnessed the local college team defeat Dickinson in the college gymnasium after forty minutes of fast play by the score of 39 to 38.

The game was decidedly the fastest seen on the local floor this year and was one of the best which has ever been played in the gymnasium. Gettysburg acquired a big lead in the first half which Dickinson gradually cut down during the latter period until only one point separated the two quintets, and then the whistle for "time-up" blew and a general sigh of relief went up from the several hundred enthusiasts who were cheering the local team and urging them on as the red and white kept nearing the locals' score.

The game opened with a rush, Dickinson scoring first on a foul. Breitenreiter and Brumbaugh, by accurate shooting and rapid floor work, caged five goals and the lead was increased until the half ended 27 to 12. Brumbaugh's carrying the ball through the entire opposing team for goals twice in succession was one of the features of the evening.

Dickinson got into form in the second period and almost reversed matters, the score for the half being 26 to 12 in their favor.

Gettysburg's frequent fouling almost lost the game, Dickinson converting fourteen of the twenty offenses into points. Gettysburg threw only three baskets out of ten tries following fouls. Barnes was referee and was satisfactory as usual. The College Band added to the gaiety of the game.

PAYS TO PLANT TREES

Thorough co-operation of all departments of the state government concerned in conservation of natural resources is necessary to re-establish the Pennsylvania forests to a proper degree in the opinion of State Commissioner of Forestry Robert S. Conklin.

Commissioner Conklin emphasizes this point in a recent report to the State Board of Agriculture, and also brings sharply home to the farmer the financial return to be derived from planting trees, a good wood crop being just as valuable as a good wheat crop, even though it does take longer to mature.

Commissioner Conklin points out that trees are of especial value because they will grow where no other crop will grow, and also because they tend to improve farming conditions generally by holding or restoring the general quality of the soil and conserving the water supply.

FISH BILL COMING

Among the bills that will shortly make their appearance in the State Legislature are those providing for additional legislation for the Fish Commission and regulating fishing in the state.

"With the exception of two, all bills introduced are part of legislation backed by the sportsmen's organization that were either omitted or tangled in the last Legislature," said Mr. Meehan. "Our object now is to correct the defects.

"Two years ago the sportsmen wanted a ten inch minimum limit on black bass. Then they compromised on nine inches. Through some misunderstanding, the Legislature passed a law making it eight inches. The bill now before the Legislature aim to make the limit ten inches, as was originally proposed."

COLLEGE ELECTION

The College Y. M. C. A. has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Hauser, president; Dulebohn, vice president; Rasmussen, corresponding secretary; Liehegott, treasurer; Kramer, recording secretary; J. Dale Diehl, historian.

A Little Previous.

"Conductor," exclaimed an irate woman who carried many bundles as she paused on the platform of the crowded trolley, "I thought I told you that I wanted to get off at Pelham avenue!"

"But, madam!"

"Don't you say a word! I know all about your car being very full and not being able to remember where everybody gets off. I've heard that before."

"But, madam, I—"

"You may be sure that I shall report you, sir, and for your impudence too." She alighted, the conductor rang his bell, and as the car started he said politely as he touched his cap:

FARMERS MET IN BIGLERVILLE

Tell of Mistakes they have Made. Say that Money Can be Saved by Making their Own Fertilizers. Other Topics Discussed.

The Adams County Agricultural Society held a meeting on Saturday in the office of W. E. Kapp, Biglerville, and discussed a number of topics of interest and importance to those engaged in agriculture. Arthur Roberts, the president presided at the meeting.

Eli Garrettson discussed "Fertilizers, Home Mixing and Use." He suggested the use of muriate of potash, South Carolina rock and legumes such as crimson clover or cow peas. From the first he said sufficient potash would be secured; from the second the sulphuric acid and from the legumes the necessary nitrogen. This way, he said, good fertilizer would be obtained at a comparatively small cost.

"Some Mistakes that Farmers Make" was the subject of a talk by Mr. Roberts who said that some time ago he made a mistake by heading back the trees and not painting the wounds. The trees are now decaying as a result. William Bream said that he had made a mistake some years ago by not taking a neighbor's advice and planting a large portion of his farm in apple trees. Only a small part was planted.

Samuel Bream talked on "Resolved that it is better for a Young Man to take up a Trade than a Profession." He said that it all depended on the young man, that no one should take up either a trade or a profession which was unpleasant or not specially liked and which would as a result not bring him success.

They should be made to the order of the Seattle Commercial Club, Seattle, Washington, and those contributing may rest assured that their gifts will be used in the most effective and economical way.

BELL RINGERS AND ENTERTAINERS

The Musical Georgetownettes which appear at Walter's Theatre afternoon and night, Feb. 25, from reports of the large cities, will be the best musical attraction ever seen in Gettysburg. This talented company play upon 24 different musical instruments. In some ways it differs from ordinary concerts and musical performances. Instead of piano or cornets, there are harps, saxophones, marimphonos, organ chimes, musical rattles, reveille tubes, byph nee, banjo, mandolins and Swiss bell ringing and a variety of sweet sound emitting instruments, percussive and otherwise that give the affair an originality that appeals most favorably to the audience.

THE TOYMAKERS

A company of six people perpetrated "The Toymakers" on the people of Gettysburg in Walter's Theatre Saturday afternoon and evening. The show was one of the poorest exhibitions which has ever been inflicted upon a local audience.

MAY SUSPEND THE RULES

House Will Attempt to Rush Measures Through in Effort to Avoid an Extra Session.

Washington, Feb. 20.—After being in continuous session from 11 o'clock Saturday morning until nearly 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the filibuster in the house against the omnibus war claims bill came to a temporary end.

The agreement to suspend hostilities was reached following an intermission of three hours devoted to memorial services for and eulogies of Senator Clay, of Georgia, and Representative Brownlow, of Tennessee. These services, occurring at midday, seemed to put the house combatants in a more peaceable frame of mind.

An effort will be made to adopt a rule shutting off further delay. It will be bitterly fought by a new band of filibusters, made up of former advocates of the measure as it came from the senate.

Representative Mann, of Illinois, who conducted the original filibuster, ended his fight when he succeeded in having the old French spoliation and the navy yard over-time claims stricken out. This was accomplished when the house voted to substitute a house bill for the senate bill. The house bill carries only war claims which have been adjudicated in the court of claims.

New Filibuster Starts.

The Democrats, who were particularly interested in the war claims affecting southern people, were opposed to the spoliation claims. When they voted to strike out the latter they lost the support of the Republican members who favored the omnibus bill because it included the French claims.

Realizing that the new house bill probably has not the slightest chance of passing the senate, Mr. Mann then ceased his filibuster. It was immediately taken up by Representatives Gardner, of Massachusetts; Bennett and Parsons, of New York, and several New England members. The New Englanders declared that unless the bill contained the spoliation claims it should not pass. They will offer long amendments to the house bill unless the rule excludes them.

There was talk that a general rule would be adopted in the house providing for the consideration of all bills during the remainder of the session under suspension of the rules. This means that debate will be cut down almost to nothing and that measures will be rushed through as fast as possible. This action would dispose effectually of the rumors that some of the house leaders were planning to bring about an extra session. If an extra session is called, as now seems probable, it is believed the house will be in a position to throw the entire blame for it on the senate.

Nothing Accomplished.

The house remained in session all Saturday night and until a few minutes before 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Practically nothing was accomplished during the last twelve hours of the sitting, except the pronouncement of the eulogies, which were permitted by unanimous consent.

The remainder of the day was spent in waiting for a quorum. Sergeant-at-arms were sent broadcast through the city. Generally speaking they did not serve their warrants on members until long towards 8 o'clock. Even then there were no physical arrests, the members being quite willing to return home to sleep, so as to relieve their fatigued comrades, who were "holding the fort."

SEVEN BURNED TO DEATH

Escaping Gas Burns and Wrecks a House.

Sutton, W. Va., Feb. 20.—But one member of a family of eight lives to tell the story of a fire attended by a gas explosion, in which the home of J. D. Harden, a prominent oil and lumberman, was partly destroyed.

His wife and their five children and an adopted daughter were burned to death. A fire in the lower part of the house and a roomful of gas in the upper part is believed to be the cause of the disaster.

President Greets Babies.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Sunday was a fairly good spring day in Washington and the president started out for a walk. In Farragut square he ran into what looked like a convention of nurse girls and babies. The president stopped to shake each child by the hand and to remark to the nurse in charge what a very fine baby she had under her care. Some of the children were too young to recognize the president, but many of them knew who the big man was.

Harvard Deficit More Than $50,000.

Boston, Feb. 20.—President Lowell, of Harvard, in his annual report to the board of overseers, says that the last year ended with a deficit of more than $50,000 to the university.

THE supervisors of Butler township will meet in special session on Saturday, February 25th from 2 to 4 p. m., at the office of W. E. Kapp in Biglerville, Pa., for the purpose of settling all accounts for the year 1910 and for the transaction of such other business as may come before them. John C. Walter, secretary.

SUPREME COURT RESUMES SESSION

Some Important Decisions to be Handed Down.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The supreme court resumed its sessions at noon today, after a vacation of three weeks. It is expected that some important decisions will be handed down.

While the court has had under advisement the anti-trust cases brought to dissolve the American Tobacco company and the Standard Oil company and the corporation tax case, it is not expected that the decisions in these cases will come today. It is possible that the corporation tax may be handed down.

It would not be surprising if the court announced a decision in the American Federation of Labor cases growing out of the Bucks Store and Range company injunctions. These cases involve the question whether the judgment of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia, affirming the decree of the supreme court of the district holding Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, officers of the American Federation of Labor, in contempt of court and sentencing them to jail, shall stand.

Another important case in which an opinion is expected today is upon the petition for a writ of certiorari asked for by officers of the naval stores trust, who were convicted of violation of the penal provisions of the Sherman anti-trust laws. Ex-Senator Spooner, as attorney, applied for a writ of certiorari to have the supreme court review the judgment of the federal court below for the district of Florida, which convicted the petitioners and sentenced them by a divided court. The case is expected to throw some light on the penal provisions of the Sherman law.

INSIST TWIGG WAS SLAIN

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 20.—A reward of $2000 is offered for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who caused the death of Charles E. Twigg.

This reward has been offered in a statement signed by Mrs. Urilla Jane Twigg, his mother; Millard and Vernon Twigg, brothers, and Mrs. Hattie T. Kimmel, sister.

The Twigg family expresses dissatisfaction with the action of State's Attorney David A. Robb in abandoning the investigation of the case, he having accepted the theory, based upon a chemical analysis, that Twigg and his betrothed, Miss Grace Ellosser, met death accidentally by carbon monoxide poisoning.

Radium May Change Precious Stones.

London, Feb. 20.—A discovery suggesting the possibility of partial transmutation of precious stones by means of radium has just been made accidentally by the owners of the Cornish radium works. One of the chief officials, who daily handles the tubes containing the rare element, noticed that a diamond in his ring seemed to change color and increase in brilliancy. Since then several experiments have been carried out with remarkable results.

Women's $80,000 Rally.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 20.—Over $80,000 was raised here during the jubilee of the Women's Missionary society. The jubilee embraced all the Protestant denominations and the money will be used to carry on missionary work during the ensuing year. The goal of the society is $1,000,000, and large sums have been raised in various other cities.

Safe Crackers Rob Theater.

New York, Feb. 20.—A safe cracking job of the old sort was done on West Thirty-fourth street within seventy feet of Broadway. Thieves got all the cash of the old Savoy theater, about $780, and reduced the safe to old iron. The Savoy is used these days as a moving picture and vaudeville theater.

RECIPROCITY OR EXTRA SESSION

Taft Issues an Ultimatum to Congress.

ALSO WARNS DEMOCRATS

Declares Attempt to Revise Tariff as Rider to Reciprocity Treaty Will Be Promptly Vetoes.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Through Representative Samuel W. McCall, of Massachusetts, President Taft notifies congress and the country of his intention to call a special session of congress in the event of the failure by the senate to vote on the Canadian reciprocity agreement.

The president's determination in this matter is clearly disclosed in a formal statement given out by the Massachusetts representative as he was leaving the White House after a conference with Mr. Taft. Opponents of the reciprocity plan in the senate have been hoping that the special session talk would prove groundless, but the statement knocks the last prop from under them on this score.

Representative McCall, obviously speaking by authority of the president, not only makes it clear that congress will be called back if the senate fails to vote on the agreement, but also serves notice that members who block action on reciprocity at this session will be held responsible for any business depression or disturbance that may result from attempted tariff revision by the Democrats in a special session.

The McCall statement goes further. Through it President Taft emphasizes his warning to the Republican party that unless they are prepared now to yield something in the interest of a reasonable policy of protection an opposition will spring up that will wipe from the statute books "the last trace of a protective tariff."

The McCall statement conveys a plain intimation to the Democrats that President Taft will veto any tariff revision that is not in keeping with his own theory of protective principles. This obviously is intended as a warning to the Democrats that any attempt by them to tack the reciprocity treaty to a radical tariff revision measure in a special session would be blocked by executive action when the measure reaches the White House.

Representative McCall's statement makes it apparent that Mr. Taft is not talking special session by way of a threat. The president's attitude is precisely as outlined in these dispatches more than a week ago. He feels obligated under the formal agreement with Canada to call a special session in the event of the failure of congress to act before March 4 next.

The agreement between the two countries pledges each to use its "utmost efforts" to bring about the passage of the legislation. The president feels that his power to call an extraordinary session of congress is included in this "utmost efforts" pledge and that he is in honor bound to fill it.

SLAYS BEARS IN FLOCKS

With Two Dogs and Four Cartridges Man Gets Four in Ten Minutes.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 20.—To kill four bears with two dogs and a gun, with only four rounds of ammunition, is a record made by few hunters.

This feat, however, was accomplished in ten minutes by John McCall, who lives on Turkey creek, about eight miles from Webster Springs, W. Va.

McCall penetrated the woods to look for some strayed stock and took his rifle and two dogs. Presently the dogs discovered an old bear with three yearling cubs in a hollow log and routed them out. The mother bear, a monster of her kind, came out first, fiercely attacking the dogs. McCall fired, but it took two charges, both of which were effective, before he could bring her down. Two cubs following were dispatched with a shot each.

McCall was now without ammunition, and there was still another. The dogs attacked this one, which was almost full grown and most formidable, and a hot fight was on when McCall seized a club and dispatched the beast.

Pope Must Rest.

Rome, Feb. 20.—The pope's condition is satisfactory to his physicians. Dr. Ettore Marchisava, the consulting physician, paid his usual weekly visit to his holiness and found him comparatively well, considering his recent indisposition. Mr. Marchisava recommended the maintenance of precautionary measures, in order to prevent a relapse, and he advised that audiences should not be resumed.

Weak-Minded Man Slays Two.

High Point, N. C., Feb. 20.—Moses Speaks, weak minded, cut his wife to death with a butcher knife and then walked three blocks to where his son-in-law, Will Miller, lived and killed him, then escaped. No cause other than that the man's demented condition is assigned for the act.

Missing

By JONATHAN C. MURRAY

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Some persons of this generation do not know that, though one now seldom sees the American flag at the peak of an ocean vessel, just before the civil war we were fast absorbing the carrying trade of the world. Steam hadn't then displaced sails as it has almost entirely done today, and our clipper sailing ships were the finest and fastest on the seas.

In 1854 I was third mate on one of these ships. We were bound for Hongkong at the time of which I am speaking, having sailed from New York. There was no Suez canal in those days, and we were obliged to go around the Cape of Good Hope. We were approaching the South African coast when we overhauled a derelict.

A derelict is always an interesting object plunging helplessly about among the waves with no hand to even attempt to guide her. Then one's curiosity it always excited as to why and how she was left by those who were on her, and the imagination gets to work at once. Our captain here to and said to me:

"Mr. Morton, take a boat, go aboard of her and investigate. Take tools to scuttle her and powder to blow her up, as the case may require."

I was much pleased at the order, and it was not long before I was aboard the derelict. I found a good deal of damage done on deck, evidently by a storm. A number of the lights had been broken, and the seas had drenched the cabin. Everything was in confusion as if those on board had been under great excitement. In one of the staterooms hanging against the wood partition was a daguerreotype of a girl evidently seventeen or eighteen years old. The happy young face was a great contrast with the wrecked condition of things about. I took it from its hook and put it in the pocket of my pea jacket.

I couldn't make out anything about the identity of the craft. Some of the boards of the stern where the name was painted had been knocked off apparently by the waves, while other letters were illegible. The letters left were:

R T A S I G O

I made a copy of them, giving the proportionate spaces between them. But there was nothing else aboard to identify the ship. She had been knocked about by wind and waves so long that her inside was pretty well washed out. I put fifty pounds of powder in her, attached a fuse, lighted it and pulled away from her. Before we reached the ship there was an explosion and she sank.

As soon as I went off duty, choosing a secluded spot, I took the daguerreotype out of my pocket to have another look. There's nothing remarkable in a young sailor out at sea on a long voyage making a companion of a girl's picture and falling in love with it. At any rate, this is what I did.

On our way back I determined to hunt through the whole of North America to find the flesh and blood that corresponded with my likeness. We had a quick voyage, but not quick enough for me, though a hunt for her would be like looking for a needle in a haystack. Nevertheless as soon as we reached our home port I went to work, overhauling the records of all the ships reported lost. But I found so many of them that I despaired of hitting on the right one. If I could supply the missing letters to the ship's name I might get into communication with some one who could tell me about my girl. But this seemed impossible. I made a list of all ships reported missing and compared my letters with their names, but I must have been very stupid, for I couldn't make them fit with any of the names on my list.

Two years later, while on the New England coast, I went ashore with some of my mates to enjoy ourselves in a summer garden. We had hardly got seated when I saw at a neighboring table the original of my picture. She looked up and, seeing me staring at her with a singular expression, looked embarrassed; but when I arose, took the daguerreotype from my pocket—I always carried it with me—and handed her her own picture I thought she would faint.

"Where did you get that?" she asked, flushing and turning pale alternately.

"Is it your likeness?" I asked.

"Yes."

"Are you sure?"

"I know it by the dress and by the artist's name stamped upon the casing. It was taken four years ago. I gave it to my brother just before he sailed on his last voyage."

"In what ship?"

"The Martha Washington."

I took out my pocketbook and drew from it the original memorandum of the letters left on the derelict's stern. They fitted in exactly with the name the girl had given me.

"What became of her?" I asked.

"She was never heard from."

I told her of the derelict I had visited and of the finding of the daguerreotype in a stateroom that had doubtless been her brother's.

I was the means of publishing the fate of a ship that had been on the list of missing vessels for four years, thus giving the relatives of those lost on her the first and only information received by them.

My next voyage I made in a ship I commanded and took the original of the daguerreotype with me as my wife.

As the result of a law passed by congress last year it will hereafter be unlawful to offer for sale in territory under federal jurisdiction adulterated or misbranded insecticides or to ship such articles from one state to another. The act specifically mentions paris green and arsenate of lead, the two chemicals most widely used by orchardists. The new law will be a real boon to fruit and vegetable growers, as it will compel manufacturers to properly label their products and enable the purchaser to know exactly what he is paying for.

SNAPSHOTS AT CELEBRITIES

Louis D. Brandeis, Expert In Business Economy.

Louis D. Brandeis, who recently told the railroads of the country that he could show them how to save $1,000,000 a day, has been a laborer for the public weal for sixteen years without pay. Mr. Brandeis' hobby is humanity. Whenever he can lend his aid to the solution of a sociological or economic problem affecting the common people he does—gratis. His warfare for the poor started in 1894, when he instituted proceedings against maladministration of certain public charities in Boston. He won after a long fight. Next he secured the passage of a law in Massachusetts which in its final result has reduced the cost of life insurance to workingmen by fully 20 per cent throughout the entire country. There was no fee for this work.

Personally Mr. Brandeis is a medium sized, wiry man, with piercing gray eyes and hair streaked with gray. He was born in old Kentucky, but most of his life has been spent in Boston. He is a partner in an old established and prosperous law firm of that city. He was married twenty years ago, and he and Mrs. Brandeis live on the same modest scale as when they began housekeeping.

An English Apology.

Shortly after Richard Croker established his home in Ireland an English periodical stated that he had made his first step in the world knocking out his gymnastic instructor in a fiercely fought three round battle. This story greatly insulted the ex-boss, who has grown so respectable that he shudders at the thought of a prizefight. He wrote and demanded an apology, whereupon the English editor apologized profusely, stating that "Mr. Croker has so many other and higher claims to celebrity." etc.

It is possible that the Englishman was indulging his sense of humor?—Chicago Tribune.

Back to the Farm For Mr. Brown.

To be just plain Farmer Brown is the ambition of William C. Brown, president of the New York Central railway system. In a recent address he admitted that the lure of the land was calling and intimated a purpose soon to retire from railroading and pursue the simple life of husbandry. Mr. Brown comes honestly by his love for the soil, for in his boyhood he followed the plow, and the smell of freshly turned sod is perfume to his nostrils. He owns a 400 acre farm in Page county, Ill., and what is a novelty among farmers owned by rich men not dependent on them for a living, Mr. Brown's farm pays.

Mr. Brown is a native of New York state, fifty-seven years old, and began his railroad career as a wood corder on a Milwaukee and St. Paul engine in 1869. In 1870 he became a telegraph operator, then a train dispatcher and eventually general manager of the Burlington and Quincy. Later he was chosen general manager of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, and in February, 1900, became president of the great New York Central system.

In a recent statement published by Chief Forester Graves the estimate is made that 84 per cent of the loss from forest fires during the year 1909 was directly traceable to carelessness on the part of settlers in burning their timber clearings and similar carelessness on the part of the railroads through failure to use effective spark arresters. Here is a type of conservation of natural resources that can be put into practice without the necessity of legislative deliberation or executive decree to make it effective.

ELECTION

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Gettysburg Gas Co. will be held at the office of the Company, No. 51 East Market street, York, Pa., on Monday, March 6, 1911, between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock a. m., for the election of a President and Board of Managers of the Company to serve for the ensuing year, for voting for or against amendments of the by-laws of the Company and for the transaction of such other corporate business as may be legally brought before the meeting. Ellis S. Lewis, Secretary.

There is really no economy in feeding a ration that is spoiled, musty or filthy to any of the farm fowls or animals. It may seem the part of thrift at the time, but in the end the practice is pretty sure to result in more harm than good.

Many a sprained wrist, dislocated hip or broken limb might be averted were the precaution taken to scatter a few ashes on the slippery portions of the steps and walks at the back of the house. Now and then the front steps need an application too.

Some time ago the director of the poultry department at Cornell university found he could cure hens of the egg eating habit by feeding them three ounces of beef suet after the first of fence and eight ounces after the second. The treatment is said to have been entirely effective.
